AND VIRGINIA ADVERTISER.
(For the Country.)
Published Regularly on TUESDAYS, THURSDAYS and SATURDAYS, at Six Dollars per annum.

REMARKS OF MR. PENDLETON, of Botetourt county Va., in the State Senate, on the resolution to purchase Elder's portrait of Gen. Lee.

"The picture which hangs before you is a life-like representation of the foremost Virginian of this country, whose fame is as wide as civilization, and will be more enduring than brass. It is the work of a young Virginian artist who served under the banner of the Great Captain whose features he has so successfully reproduced on canvas."

It would be painting the lily—adding perfume to the rose, for me to attempt, in this presence, to speak in praise of the lofty virtues and renowned deeds of Robert E. Lee. If to have lived a life wholly devoted to duty and to have died the death of a humble Christian; if to have exhibited a benign equanimity in prosperity and a unflinching fortitude in adversity, the most cruel; if to have added to the most brilliant military achievements the most elevated civic virtues; if to have attracted at once the admiration of the world and the most affectionate devotion of his neighbors; if to have lived universally honored and died universally regretted, constitute any claim to human greatness, then certainly we may call Robert E. Lee great.

It was said of Washington, that whilst "he was first in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen," he was second to none in the humble and endearing scenes of private life; pious, just, humane, temperate and sincere; uniform, dignified and commanding, his example was as edifying to all around him as were the effects of that example lasting."

With almost painful consciousness of the sacred ground on which I tread in appropriating to the transient virtues of the "Father of his Country," I venture to ask of all candid men, which one of these words is inapplicable to Lee?

Does some one ask how can we consistently appropriate the public money to the purchase of this painting, while the public creditors plead in vain for the payment of their just demands?

I will answer him. The dead have their claims upon us no less than the living. No State or nation has ever yet flourished or prospered which did not honor and perpetuate the memory of its dead heroes. Westminster Abbey is to England at once the history of its past and the sure pledge of its future greatness. How many young sons of Virginia have felt their hearts swelling with a nobler enthusiasm and a loftier ambition, as they have lingered in admiration upon the forms of the founders and architects of Virginia's grandeur moulded in imperishable bronze—her statesmen, her law-givers, her jurists, her orators, and her heroes? It is, indeed, rather for the living than the dead that great virtues and great deeds should be thus perpetuated.

Sir, we all feel that Virginia has been retrograding, and upon us and upon those who are to come after us, rests the responsible task of restoring her to her pristine glory. I am not one of those who have lost faith in her future. She has noble sons yet living capable of making her again great and prosperous if they will but recognize the duty which is cast upon them and faithfully discharge it. Sir, let us study the lives and emulate the example of those who made Virginia great in former days. Let us keep them ever before our eyes. Let us reverse their lives and copy their virtues, and the time will surely come when Virginia, in the words of the great poet of English liberty, "will rouse herself like a strong man after sleep, and slaking her invincible limbs, will be an eagle raising her mighty youth, kindling her undazzled eyes at the midday fountain, while the timorous birds of her evil destiny, loving the twilight, shall flutter about amazed at what she means."

It will be observed that the picture before us presents General Lee in the dress of a civilian—as a citizen of Virginia. It is in this character that I most like to contemplate him; I have no desire to perpetuate the animosities and the cruel recollections of the late war. I prefer, therefore, to see our great chieftain clothed in his great civic virtues, and I desire that all the senators who shall sit in this chamber shall learn from the contemplation of that noble countenance wisdom, prudence, fortitude and justice.

THE VIRGINIA BOUNDARY QUESTION.—The Virginia Senate has passed a supplemental bill for a commission to consider the boundary lines not only of Virginia and Maryland, but between Tennessee and North Carolina also. Five thousand dollars is appropriated to defray the cost of the commission. In the course of the debate it was calculated that the recovery of disputed territory by Virginia would in taxation much more than reimburse the State in one year for any expense incurred. The Senator from Bland county (Mr. French) stated that within the last twelve months it has been discovered that the proper line of Virginia in the vicinity of Bristol would include some four or five miles under the jurisdiction of Tennessee. As for Maryland, it is claimed that she is in possession of a very large and valuable area that belongs to Virginia. Should this resolution pass both houses, the commissioners may expend a portion of the money appropriated in supplying the proofs of Virginia's title to the area now included in Maryland which Mr. Angus McDonald procured in England, and which was destroyed just after the war closed.

FLOUR—We have on hand and are constantly receiving from the Valley FAMILY EXTRA and SUPERFINE FLOUR, which we offer for sale at market prices. Constantly on hand a supply of the well-known and favorite brand.

"ISAAC WENGER'S FAMILY," equal to any Flour that is made, to which we call the attention of the trade.

THE SALE OF THE 520 acre tract of wood and timber land on Pohick run, and through which the Alexandria and Fredericksburg R. R. will pass, is postponed until the 23d instant, in front of the Mayor's office, at Alexandria, upon the same terms and conditions as per previous notice. For further particulars address

The following letters speak for themselves:

Washington, Nov. 4, 1870.

Mr. Arthur Nattans: Dear Sir—After a very thorough and impartial trial of your Crystal Discovery, I cordially recommend it to all who are in need of a remedy for the removal of the hair, and by a few applications restoring it to its original color. It is perfectly clean and free from any objectionable matter.

Very respectfully yours,
R. W. SILVER,
K. st., bet. 4th and 5th, N. W.

Alexandria, Va., Sept. 10, 1870.

Mr. Arthur Nattans: Sir—I have great pleasure in testifying to the excellence of your Crystal Discovery for the hair. My back hair is remarkably long and thick, and became prematurely gray, (this being hereditary.) In eight days it resumed its natural color, chestnut-brown, coloring every hair. I like your preparation for its purity, pleasant odor, and freedom from mineral and poisonous substances, as well as its other excellencies. I will recommend it to my acquaintances. Very respectfully, Miss L...
